

Jean-Marie Guéhenno is the Arnold A. Saltzman professor of professional practice in international and public affairs and the director of the Kent Global Leadership Program in conflict resolution at the School of International and Public Affairs at Columbia University.

He is a member of the U.N. advisory board on disarmament matters, of the High-level Advisory Board on mediation created by Secretary-General Antonio Guterres, and of the International Advisory Board of Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA). He is also a counsellor of the Australian consultancy Dragoman, and a distinguished fellow at the Brookings Institution. He was President and Chief Executive Officer of the International Crisis Group from 2014 to 2017. He has held numerous senior-level positions during his distinguished career, spanning peacekeeping, international security and defense policy.

Jean-Marie Guéhenno was the Under-Secretary-General for peacekeeping operations from 2000 to 2008, becoming the longest-serving head of peacekeeping and leading an unprecedented expansion of peacekeeping. When Kofi Annan was appointed Joint Special Envoy for Syria in 2012, he selected Mr Guéhenno to be his Deputy, a position he left to chair a review of France's defense and national security at the request of the President of France. Before joining the United Nations, Mr. Guéhenno had a distinguished career in the French Government and the private sector. He was the director of policy planning in the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs from 1989 to 1993, when the Cold War ended. Subsequently, as the ambassador to the Western European Union, he helped lay the foundations of a renewed European defense effort. From 1998 to 2000, he was chairman of the French Institute of Higher Defense Studies.

Mr. Guéhenno has published articles in many newspapers and magazines, and is the author of four books: La Fin de la Démocratie (1993), a book acclaimed by The Economist, which has been translated in a dozen languages, and is considered as the first book to have identified the challenges of globalization, L'Avenir de la liberté, la Démocratie dans la mondialisation (1999), The Fog of Peace: A Memoir of Peacekeeping in the 21st Century (2015) and Le Premier XXIème Siècle, de la Globalisation à l'Émiettement du Monde (2021), which received the annual prize of the Revue des Deux Mondes in 2022.

Mr. Guéhenno is a board member of the Carnegie Corporation, the Stockholm Peace Research Institute, and the Ecole Normale Supérieure. He is the chair of the scientific committee of the Institute for Higher national defense studies (Institut des Hautes Etudes de Défense Nationale) in Paris. He is also a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Mr. Guéhenno holds the highest decoration of the Federal Republic of Germany (commander of the Bundesverdienstkreuz), and is an officier de la Légion d'Honneur. Mr. Guéhenno is bilingual English-French. He is a graduate of the Ecole Normale Supérieure, the Institut d'Etudes Politiques, and the Ecole Nationale d'Administration (ENA)
