Application

•APPLICATION PROCESS

•1. Student ranking: Students submit application and rank all positions they are interested in.

•2. Faculty ranking: Faculty receive list of students who have applied for their position. They do not see the student rankings of their position. They submit ranked list of candidates.

•3. Selection: Assignments are made based on matching student and faculty preferences. If two or more faculty want to hire the same student, the student is assigned to the position the student ranked the highest.

•4. Selection will be made in stages. TA positions will be determined, first, followed by Reader positions, and so on. After each stage, the selected students will be made offers, and their candidacy will be removed from further consideration.

•5. All offers are final. If a student rejects a position, they will not be hired in the same semester for another Assistantship position. This is why it is important for students to only apply for positions they would accept. Students are appointed to only one assistantship per semester.

•6. Students will be notified by the timelines listed below. If you have not received an offer by the notification dates listed below, it means you did not receive an assistantship for that round, but may still receive an assistantship if you applied in the subsequent rounds.
